Firearm injuries constitute a serious public health crisis resulting in over 100 deaths per day across the United States. The University of Michigan launched its Institute for Firearm Injury Prevention in 2021 to generate new knowledge and advance innovative solutions that reduce firearm injury, while respecting the rights of responsible, law-abiding firearm owners.

Visit firearminjury.umich.edu to learn more about the Institute and how you can support our mission.